... and nature moves in!

You have decided on high quality furniture in natural wood with natural oiled surfaces. To ensure long lasting pleasure in your furniture it is going to need a little bit of care now and again. Exclusively natural oils, waxes and cleaning materials are used both in manufacture and in aftercare.

Oiled surfaces have a number of advantages when compared to varnished surfaces. It breaths and therefore improves the atmosphere in the room. It is antistatic which means it dust and dirt repellent. You can easily touch up small scratches yourself with the Voglauer repair kit.

Regular care

To maintain the quality of Voglauer oiled furniture, a refresher every six months with the Voglauer care kit is recommended. Apply the Voglauer care oil thinly with a cotton cloth and rub over it smoothly and evenly.

Dirt and colour stains

Remove signs of use simply by applying Voglauer care oil thinly. If there are spots of dirt or colour, they can be removed with cleansing milk. Finish the surface with care oil again afterwards.

If any dirt has got into the wood, this can be worked on with a Voglauer scouring pad. Be sure to remove surface dirt with cleansing milk beforehand. Take care to avoid light areas in the wood which can result from scouring, they will still remain even after finishing with Voglauer care oil. The light areas do however settle to the colour of the other furniture after a few months.

Scratches and dents

If the wood has been damaged mechanically by scratches or dents, these can also be largely removed. First remove the care oil again from the damaged area with Voglauer cleansing milk, then wet the area or dampen it carefully and a damp cloth. Then scour the area clean with sandpaper (240 grain) and then finish with Voglauer care oil.
